Multiplayer Mode

Video Game Music Reimagined

All photos by Matthew Fried, courtesy of the New Haven Symphony Orchestra

The award-winning video game music band DiscoCactus has prepared a symphonic concert of popular video game soundtracks! Featuring a setlist of games that range from mega blockbuster titles to revered indie gems, this family-friendly concert experience features dynamic lighting, virtuosic performances and electrifying stage presence by one of the most beloved video game bands in the USA.

Following the release of their albums Mania Mode and D.L.C., DiscoCactus has designed a symphonic experience that melds the colorful majesty of the orchestra with the energetic, foot-stomping energy of the band, in true musical partnership. The show is especially suitable for regional orchestras with limited production budgets, and includes a complete set of sheet music for all of the selections.

Originally titled Let's Play, this concert premiered on May 31st, 2025, with the New Haven Symphony Orchestra at the Lyman Center in New Haven, Connecticut.

Click here to watch the highlight reel!

More about DiscoCactus

Based in the New York tri-state area, the ensemble includes vibraphonist Doug Perry, keyboardist Ben Wallace, vocalist and multi-woodwind specialist Laura Intravia, guitarist Pete Bobinski, bassist Sam Bobinski, violinist Matheus Souza, and drummer Chris Pierorazio. Hailing from lauded conservatories including the Yale School of Music, Peabody Conservatory and University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music, DiscoCactus combines their classical training with their experience in funk, jazz and other popular styles to create genre-bending interpretations of video game music. Each member is also an active professional in the game audio field, having performed on celebrated soundtracks such as Celeste, Destiny 2, Final Fantasy XV, Mortal Kombat 11 and Star Wars Outlaws. They have also appeared as orchestral members and featured soloists with other video game concerts including The Legend of Zelda: Symphony of the Goddesses, Video Games Live and Pokémon: Symphonic Evolutions.

See and hear more of DiscoCactus: